| 572. | Sarah Thyng | Waukesha, WI | I would be interested in knowing how many people who support Prop 90 actually depend on farming and hunting as a way of life. It is always easy to "steal" or take away from others, when it has no personal impact on your life or on your family. When I refer to personal impact, I don't refer to mere preferences, I refer to survival. If you need me to spell out what I mean by survival in this context, contact me and don't try to twist my words. Kindly, Sarah Thyng |

| 760. | Eve Green | Anchorage, AK | The fact is that our rights to have livestock on private property are slowing being chipped away at. Wether it comes from crack down within the municipality or buying property outside of city limits and still not being able to do as you please. The more regulation put in place, the less freedom we have to live the healthy, "alternative" lifestyles that we have the right to choose for ourselves and for our families. I will fight hard to make sure that Alaska of all places is protected from these sorts of injustices. |
